Domestic violence victims turn to their religious leaders for help. As a religious leader, it is essential to have specific training in domestic violence awareness. We have come together to host a training forum which includes DV and Intimate Partner Violence dynamics.

Participants will be able to provide the proper response to the victim/survivor seeking help and learn methods of encouragement in personal religious faith to cope with the abusive situation.

Attendees will also learn how to provide resources from organizations, counselors, and the other professionals who are experts on domestic violence and intimate partner violence. The training is for all faiths and spiritual leaders of any religion or denomination.
